

SERVICE OF GOLD FOR "LITTLE TIM"

Italian Citizens of His District to Present Gift to Alderman Sullivan.

"Big Tim" will play second fiddle to "Little Tim" tonight for the young leader of the Sixth Assembly District, the goal of many an ambitious and over-zealous reformer and the rendezvous of numerous election officials, is to be dined and wine-d, that won't do. "Little Tim" never wins by some of the most distinguished Italian residents of the city.

Lyons' restaurant—the Delmonico's of the Bowery—will be converted into a banquet hall to-night, and the tables will be crowded with the friends of "Little Tim," who is to be honored by the Italian-born American citizens of the district. The latter have invited many prominent Italian residents outside the district who have expressed a warm regard for Alderman Sullivan for many thoughtful acts shown toward their humble fellow citizens of the east side.

Diplomats at the Feast.

Italian merchants, bankers, officials, as well as members of the Italian Consulate, all known to "Little Tim," will be among the guests. The Bowery is to be well represented apart from the Alderman by the Mulligans, "Big Tim," who will occupy a more guest's seat; the Faddens, with the Colonel in the lead; Senator Fitzgerald, the Bowery legislator; Johnny White, Charley White, "Billy" Long and luminaries of the Hepler Club.

Congressman William Sulzer and Senator Thomas C. Gandy will respond to the toast "United States" and "Our City." Michael A. Rocco will be the toastmaster, while Rocco M. Marano, an Italian leader, will make a speech, which he will conclude by presenting to "Little Tim" a set of solid gold dinner ware of five pieces, wrought by Tiffany, and the cost of which amounts to three figures.

The gift comes from the Italian-Americans of the district.

Other toasts are to be: "Italy," by the Hon. Antonio C. Ascarelli; "Commerce," by the Hon. Peter C. Ascarelli; "Italians in America," by Judge George F. Rosen; "Italian Democracy," by Dr. St. B. Pappalardo; to conclude by responding to the toast "Our Guest" will reply, and his speech is ready. It is said to be a corker.

TROLLEY CARS RAM MILK WAGONS

Three Drivers and a Motor-man Hurt in Collisions on Track Crossings.

Three men were injured in Brooklyn and one in Manhattan early to-day by trolley cars colliding with two milk wagons. In each case the wagons were attempting to cross the tracks when they were run down and demolished.

The drivers were injured, one being sent to the Presbyterian Hospital in this borough; the others, including a driver, his assistant and a motorman, being treated by an ambulance surgeon of the Williamsburg Hospital.

In the case of the Manhattan accident the colliding car was one of the heavy box express cars which is designed to have been proceeding at a high rate of speed without a headlight. In neither case was an arrest made.

John Duryea, of No. 922 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, with his helper, Peter Ascher, of No. 538 Ralph avenue, were on a milk truck crossing the junction of Broadway and East street when they were run down by a Sumner avenue trolley car. The wagon was demolished, as was the front part of the car, and both men were hurt.

George Wyckoff, the motorman, also sustained several bruises. The men were helped to their homes, an extra hand being required to proceed with the car to the barn.

INNKEEPER IS MISSING.

Proprietor of Hollywood, at Freeport, Has Strangely Disappeared.

Announcement was made to-day that Kenneth S. Garson, proprietor of the Hollywood inn, at Freeport, L. I., who has been detained for several weeks, has been missing since last Sunday.

Speaking of his disappearance Mrs. Garson said:

"Ever since the failure two years ago of W. J. Stow & Co., in Wall street, with which my husband was connected, he has suffered from several attacks of melancholia. Added to this, worry caused by recent litigation unbalanced his mind. With his consent we had just completed arrangements to have him sent to a sanitarium, when he disappeared."

SAVED MAN FROM ICE-FILLED RIVER

Brave Watchman Dived After Drowning Deckhand and Took Rescue Lightly.

Big chunks of ice were grinding up against the North River docks early to-day and the north wind was cutting like a knife, when Chris Jansen, deck hand on the lighter Abbie L., moored to the Clyde line docks at the foot of Christopher street, tacked down slippery West street pavements and started up the gangplank, considerably the worse after a night ashore.

Jansen lurched off the gangplank and fell with a splash into the ice-filled water. He yelled and his cries were heard by H. P. Hallanan, night watchman employed on the pier, and William H. Reynolds, night superintendent.

The watchman and superintendent ran along shore, but so dark was the night and so high the wind that they could not locate the victim. Jansen had been caught by the ebb tide and carried many feet out into the river. There he clung to piles and yelled. A lantern shined on the half-drowned man at the end of a pier and a rope was lowered to him.

"Catch hold," said Hallanan. Jansen caught hold, but his hands were stiff from cold, and he slid into the water. Again the tide caught him and he disappeared.

Hallanan is a brave man, they say along the water front. He is a good swimmer, too. He took off his coat in a jiffy and dived into the river. Again and again he dived, and then his fingers closed on Jansen's hair. Hallanan struck out for shore, and it was no easy task towing the unconscious Jansen toward the pier. He was hauled up, and then lowered a rope and it was tied about Jansen's chest.

"All to the good," replied Hallanan. "It's my duty, I've got to keep a close watch a windy night like this."

Reynolds gave Hallanan a change of clothing, and he went off, swinging his lantern and whistling. Jansen was carried to the hospital.

BENZINE SET HIS CLOTHING ON FIRE

Morris Rifkin ran from the store-front establishment of Samuel Lavine, No. 121 Chrystie street, to-day, his hands and face covered by burning benzine and his clothes flaming.

Across the street is the lively stable of Zalig Poskin, and Rifkin was making for a tub of water in the rear of the stable when Poskin and one of his drivers, Joseph M. Lowery, thinking that he would set the stable on fire, held him the other smothered the flames with an overcoat. Then someone finished the job by hurling a pail of water on the man's charred flesh and burned clothes.

Rifkin was taken to a drug-store and later to Gouverneur Hospital, where it was said that his injuries were very serious.

Rifkin had been sleeping in his employer's office, hoping to save as much money as possible to bring his wife and child here from Europe. One of his morning duties was to light the fire in the office. He was lighting the fire to-day when he tipped over a can of benzine. The benzine fell on the store and an explosion followed.

The firemen made short work of the flames in the store.
